

FleetSafe Solutions Update on Marijuana Rescheduling

On December 18th, President Trump's Executive Order addressing the directive to proceed with the rescheduling of marijuana includes language that preserves the U.S. Department of Transportation's authority to continue THC testing for safety-sensitive positions.

The DOT marijuana classification remains a Schedule I drug under the Controlled Substances Act until any rescheduling process is finalized. Consequently, it is still prohibited for any safety-sensitive employee who is subject to drug testing under the Department of Transportation's regulations to use marijuana.

You can view the DOT's Notice on this here.

While the marijuana rescheduling process raises many questions nationwide, one thing is clear:

- DOT drug testing panels remain unchanged
- THC testing for safety-sensitive positions continues as required.

If you have questions on this please contact Kim Claytor at kclaytor@fleetsafesolutions.com.

FleetSafe will continue to update you as more information on this unfolds. Until then you can always Contact us, or check out our Facebook page for updates on this and more.

Thank you,

The FleetSafe Team